

STAND UP FOR NORTH KOREA

REVOLUTIONARY ANTI-IMPERIALIST MOVEMENT

The loyal US media has drilled into the heads of the public that North Korea's nuclear program is the chief threat to world peace, that if they could acquire an intercontinental missile, then they would surely use it, namely against the US. But what do the North Koreans themselves say? Despite the wildly out-of-context headlines, the DPRK government has pledged never to use nuclear weapons unless deliberately attacked! A right every nation reserves for itself!

The United States government has accused the North of being "aggressive" toward the US and South Korea, however it is this government which has kept more than 20,000 soldiers on the Korean peninsula, and prevents, by way of blockade, the importation of necessary food, medicine, and fuel. The US holds yearly military exercises, dress rehearsals for the invasion of the North, and has violated the country's territorial sovereignty repeatedly. When has North Korea been aggressive? Only in response to the overwhelming history of animosity and violence carried out against them!

Americans often forget about the Korean War altogether, perhaps because they wish to forget that US soldiers perpetrated unspeakable atrocities. By war's end, the Pentagon had confirmed that more than 1 in 5 Koreans had died from American napalm bombing and massacres. General MacArthur had famously bragged that "we have bombed them back to the stone-age." The US has repeatedly violated the terms of the agreement which ended the Korean war by introducing nuclear weapons onto the peninsula, all pointed at the North, long before Pyongyang ever enriched a single ounce of uranium. While this war remains willfully forgotten, the North Korean people cannot forget the horrors of that war, and are constantly threatened with another, more terrible war.

America alone has the ability to end the conflict. All it must do is leave the Korean peninsula, and the situation would be resolved. North Korea does not want war. They stand ready to defend their country, but do not intend to carry out a "preemptive" attack on anyone. It is the American presence on the Korean peninsula which has kept this tension alive, and now it is our responsibility to take up the call: "United States out of Korea!"

ANTI-IMPERIALISM.ORG

STAND UP FOR NORTH KOREA

REVOLUTIONARY ANTI-IMPERIALIST MOVEMENT

The loyal US media has drilled into the heads of the public that North Korea's nuclear program is the chief threat to world peace, that if they could acquire an intercontinental missile, then they would surely use it, namely against the US. But what do the North Koreans themselves say? Despite the wildly out-of-context headlines, the DPRK government has pledged never to use nuclear weapons unless deliberately attacked! A right every nation reserves for itself!

The United States government has accused the North of being "aggressive" toward the US and South Korea, however it is this government which has kept more than 20,000 soldiers on the Korean peninsula, and prevents, by way of blockade, the importation of necessary food, medicine, and fuel. The US holds yearly military exercises, dress rehearsals for the invasion of the North, and has violated the country's territorial sovereignty repeatedly. When has North Korea been aggressive? Only in response to the overwhelming history of animosity and violence carried out against them!

Americans often forget about the Korean War altogether, perhaps because they wish to forget that US soldiers perpetrated unspeakable atrocities. By war's end, the Pentagon had confirmed that more than 1 in 5 Koreans had died from American napalm bombing and massacres. General MacArthur had famously bragged that "we have bombed them back to the stone-age." The US has repeatedly violated the terms of the agreement which ended the Korean war by introducing nuclear weapons onto the peninsula, all pointed at the North, long before Pyongyang ever enriched a single ounce of uranium. While this war remains willfully forgotten, the North Korean people cannot forget the horrors of that war, and are constantly threatened with another, more terrible war.

America alone has the ability to end the conflict. All it must do is leave the Korean peninsula, and the situation would be resolved. North Korea does not want war. They stand ready to defend their country, but do not intend to carry out a "preemptive" attack on anyone. It is the American presence on the Korean peninsula which has kept this tension alive, and now it is our responsibility to take up the call: "United States out of Korea!"

ANTI-IMPERIALISM.ORG

STAND UP FOR NORTH KOREA

REVOLUTIONARY ANTI-IMPERIALIST MOVEMENT

The loyal US media has drilled into the heads of the public that North Korea's nuclear program is the chief threat to world peace, that if they could acquire an intercontinental missile, then they would surely use it, namely against the US. But what do the North Koreans themselves say? Despite the wildly out-of-context headlines, the DPRK government has pledged never to use nuclear weapons unless deliberately attacked! A right every nation reserves for itself!

The United States government has accused the North of being "aggressive" toward the US and South Korea, however it is this government which has kept more than 20,000 soldiers on the Korean peninsula, and prevents, by way of blockade, the importation of necessary food, medicine, and fuel. The US holds yearly military exercises, dress rehearsals for the invasion of the North, and has violated the country's territorial sovereignty repeatedly. When has North Korea been aggressive? Only in response to the overwhelming history of animosity and violence carried out against them!

Americans often forget about the Korean War altogether, perhaps because they wish to forget that US soldiers perpetrated unspeakable atrocities. By war's end, the Pentagon had confirmed that more than 1 in 5 Koreans had died from American napalm bombing and massacres. General MacArthur had famously bragged that "we have bombed them back to the stone-age." The US has repeatedly violated the terms of the agreement which ended the Korean war by introducing nuclear weapons onto the peninsula, all pointed at the North, long before Pyongyang ever enriched a single ounce of uranium. While this war remains willfully forgotten, the North Korean people cannot forget the horrors of that war, and are constantly threatened with another, more terrible war.

America alone has the ability to end the conflict. All it must do is leave the Korean peninsula, and the situation would be resolved. North Korea does not want war. They stand ready to defend their country, but do not intend to carry out a "preemptive" attack on anyone. It is the American presence on the Korean peninsula which has kept this tension alive, and now it is our responsibility to take up the call: "United States out of Korea!"

ANTI-IMPERIALISM.ORG

STAND UP FOR NORTH KOREA

REVOLUTIONARY ANTI-IMPERIALIST MOVEMENT

The loyal US media has drilled into the heads of the public that North Korea's nuclear program is the chief threat to world peace, that if they could acquire an intercontinental missile, then they would surely use it, namely against the US. But what do the North Koreans themselves say? Despite the wildly out-of-context headlines, the DPRK government has pledged never to use nuclear weapons unless deliberately attacked! A right every nation reserves for itself!

The United States government has accused the North of being "aggressive" toward the US and South Korea, however it is this government which has kept more than 20,000 soldiers on the Korean peninsula, and prevents, by way of blockade, the importation of necessary food, medicine, and fuel. The US holds yearly military exercises, dress rehearsals for the invasion of the North, and has violated the country's territorial sovereignty repeatedly. When has North Korea been aggressive? Only in response to the overwhelming history of animosity and violence carried out against them!

Americans often forget about the Korean War altogether, perhaps because they wish to forget that US soldiers perpetrated unspeakable atrocities. By war's end, the Pentagon had confirmed that more than 1 in 5 Koreans had died from American napalm bombing and massacres. General MacArthur had famously bragged that "we have bombed them back to the stone-age." The US has repeatedly violated the terms of the agreement which ended the Korean war by introducing nuclear weapons onto the peninsula, all pointed at the North, long before Pyongyang ever enriched a single ounce of uranium. While this war remains willfully forgotten, the North Korean people cannot forget the horrors of that war, and are constantly threatened with another, more terrible war.

America alone has the ability to end the conflict. All it must do is leave the Korean peninsula, and the situation would be resolved. North Korea does not want war. They stand ready to defend their country, but do not intend to carry out a "preemptive" attack on anyone. It is the American presence on the Korean peninsula which has kept this tension alive, and now it is our responsibility to take up the call: "United States out of Korea!"

ANTI-IMPERIALISM.ORG